

Business Under Surveillance (BUS)

The Business under Surveillance (BUS) program helps poor-performing companies improve their workplace safety and health (WSH) performance by developing and implement a safety and health management system.

How BUS works

- This BUS program is divided into two phases: Assessment and Surveillance.
- In the Assessment phase, MOM's Occupational Safety and Health Division (OSHD) will conduct a review on the company's risk assessment and management system. If the company fails the assessment, it will come under surveillance.
- In the Surveillance phase, the Organization's management must develop and commit to a comprehensive and sustainable action plan.

Benefits of BUS

- Improve business operations,
- Boost Productivity and profit,
- Reduce Incident of workplace violence,
- Reduce the risk of employees and others.
